

DOSSIER LITERARI

GERTRUDE STEIN 2024

1	SAGRADA EMÍLIA (fragment)	2
	Versió original: Sacred Emily	3
2	AUTOBIOGRAFIA D'ALICE B. TOKLAS	4
	Versió original: The autobiography of Alice B. Toklas	5
3	EL MÓN ÉS RODÓ	6
	Versió original: The world is round	7
4	QUÈ SÓN LES OBRES MESTRES I PER QUÈ SÓN TAN ESCASSES	8
	Versió original: What are master-pieces and why are there so few of them	9
5	PARÍS ERA UNA FESTA (Ernest Hemingway)	10
	Versió original: A moveable feast	11

1. SAGRADA EMÍLIA (fragment)

[...]

Préssecs de paper

Préssecs de paper són llàgrimes.

Descansar és gotims de raïm.

Necessaris del tot.

Senyals necessaris del tot.

Tots menys.

Traient un pes de sobre traient un pes de sobre.

Argonautes.

Amb allò n'hi ha de sobres.

Senyal saxó astut.

Senyal de bellesa.

Didal de tot.

Didal de trèvol astut.

Astúcia de tot.

Astúcia de didal.

Astúcia astuta.

Indrets a mascotes.

Poble nocturn.

Poble nocturn un vidre.

Color caoba.

Color caoba centre.

Rosa és una rosa és una rosa és una rosa.

Extremada bellesa.

Polaines extra.

Extremada bellesa.

Gelat extremadament dolç.

Full vells full vells full vells.

Assecat Assecat cable cable.

Més dolç que préssecs i peres i nata.

Cable assecat cable assecat.

Extra extremada.

Posa mesura tresor.

Mesura tresor.

[...]

(Gertrude Stein. Sagrada Emília. Barcelona: Cafè Central, 2005. Trad. Sam Abrams)

Versió original

[...]
Paper peaches.
Paper peaches are tears.
Rest in grapes.
Thoroughly needed.
Thoroughly needed signs.
All but.
Relieving relieving.
Argonauts.
That is plenty.
Cunning saxon symbol.
Symbol of beauty.
Thimble of everything.
Cunning clover thimble.
Cunning of everything.
Cunning of thimble.
Cunning cunning.
Place in pets.
Night town.
Night town a glass.
Color mahogany.
Color mahogany center.
Rose is a rose is a rose is a rose.
Loveliness extreme.
Extra gaiters.
Loveliness extreme.
Sweetest ice-cream.
Page ages page ages page ages.
Wiped Wiped wire wire.
Sweeter than peaches and pears and cream.
Wiped wire wiped wire.
Extra extreme.
Put measure treasure.
Measure treasure.
[...]

(Gertrude Stein. “Sacred Emily” in Geography and plays. Boston: The four seas Company, 1922 [1913], p. 178-188)

2. AUTOBIOGRAFIA D'ALICE B. TOKLAS

Fernande tenia aleshores una nova amiga, de la qual em parlava sovint. Era Eve, que vivia amb Marcoussis. I un vespre, tots quatre, Pablo, Fernande, Marcoussis i Eve, van venir a la Rue de Fleurus. Va ser l'única vegada que vam veure Marcoussis aleshores, fins molts i molts anys més tard.

Entenc perfectament que Eve agradés a Fernande. Tal com ja he dit, la gran heroïna de Fernande era Evelyn Thaw, baixeta i negativa.

Al cap de poc temps, Picasso va venir un dia i va dir a Gertrude Stein que havia decidit llogar un estudi a la Rue Ravignan. Allà podria treballar millor. No va poder trobar el seu antic estudi, però en va llogar un altre al pis de baix de tot. Un dia el vam anar a veure allà. No hi era, i Gertrude Stein li va deixar una targeta, per fer-li una broma. Al cap d'uns quants dies, hi vam tornar a anar i Picasso estava treballant en un quadre on hi havia escrit ma jolie i en una de les cantonades de baix, pintada, hi havia la targeta de visita de Gertrude Stein. Quan ens n'anàvem, Gertrude Stein em va dir, certament, Fernande no és pas ma jolie, em pregunto qui deu ser. Uns dies més tard ho vam saber. Pablo se n'havia anat amb Eve.

Això va ser a la primavera. Ells tenien per costum anar a Ceret, prop de Perpinyà, a passar-hi l'estiu, probablement a causa de Manolo, i, malgrat tot, hi van tornar a anar novament. Fernande hi va anar accompagnada dels Pichot, i Eve, de Picasso. Es van produir algunes batusses terribles, i després tots van tornar a París.

Un vespre, nosaltres també ja havíem tornat, va venir Picasso. Gertrude Stein i ell van estar xerrant una bona estona tots dos sols. Era Picasso, va dir ella quan va tornar a entrar després de dir-li adeu, i m'ha dit una cosa meravellosa de Fernande, m'ha dit que la seva bellesa sempre l'havia subjugat, però que no podia suportar la seva manera de fer. Va afegir, a més, que Pablo i Eve s'havien instal·lat al Boulevard Raspail, i que aniríem a veure'l's l'endemà.

Mentrestant, Gertrude Stein havia rebut una carta de Fernande, molt digna, escrita amb tota la reticència d'una francesa. Deia que volia dir a Gertrude Stein que entenia perfectament que la seva amistat sempre havia estat amb Picasso i que, encara que Gertrude sempre li havia demostrat simpatia i afecte, ara que Picasso i ella s'havien separat, seria impossible, naturalment, que en el futur hi hagués cap relació entre elles, ja que, com que la seva amistat havia estat amb Picasso, no hi havia cap mena de dubte a l'hora d'escollir. Que sempre tindria un bon record d'ella i que, si mai ho necessitava, es permetria d'apel·lar a la generositat de Gertrude.

I va ser així com Picasso va deixar Montmartre per no tornar-hi mai més.

Versió original

Fernande had at this time a new friend of whom she often spoke to me. This was Eve who was living with Marcoussis. And one evening all four of them came to the rue de Fleurus, Pablo, Fernande, Marcoussis and Eve. It was the only time we ever saw Marcoussis until many many years later.

I could perfectly understand Fernande's liking for Eve. As I said Fernande's great heroine was Evelyn Thaw, small and negative. Here was a little french Evelyn Thaw, small and perfect.

Not long after this Picasso came one day and told Gertrude Stein that he had decided to take an atelier in the rue Ravignan. He could work better there. He could not get back his old one but he took one on the lower floor. One day we went to see him there. He was not in and Gertrude Stein as a joke left her visiting card. In a few days we went again and Picasso was at work on a picture on which was written ma jolie and at the lower corner painted in was Gertrude Stein's visiting card. As we went away Gertrude Stein said, Fernande is certainly not ma jolie, I wonder who it is. In a few days we knew. Pablo had gone off with Eve.

This was in the spring. They all had the habit of going to Céret near Perpignan for the summer probably on account of Manolo, and they all in spite of everything went there again. Fernande was there with the Pichots and Eve was there with Pablo. There were some redoubtable battles and then everybody came back to Paris.

One evening, we too had come back, Picasso came in. He and Gertrude Stein had a long talk alone. It was Pablo, she said when she came in from having bade him goodbye, and he said a marvellous thing about Fernande, he said her beauty always held him but he could not stand any of her little ways. She further added that Pablo and Eve were now settled on the boulevard Raspail and we would go and see them to-morrow.

In the meanwhile Gertrude Stein had received a letter from Fernande, very dignified, written with the reticence of a frenchwoman. She said that she wished to tell Gertrude Stein that she understood perfectly that the friendship had always been with Pablo and that although Gertrude had always shown her every mark of sympathy and affection now that she and Pablo were separated, it was naturally impossible that in the future there should be any intercourse between them because the friendship having been with Pablo there could of course be no question of a choice. That she would always remember their intercourse with pleasure and that she would permit herself, if ever she were in need, to throw herself upon Gertrude's generosity.

And so Picasso left Montmartre never to return.

(Gertrude Stein. The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas. New York: Harcourt Brace & Co. 1933, p. 111, 112)

3. EL MÓN ÉS RODÓ

Hi havia una vegada en el passat sempre hi havia camps amb gespa al cim de cada muntanya. Una muntanya semblava com si tingués roques a la part de dalt però veritablement a la part de dalt sempre hi havia gespa i la gespa sempre feia que es veiés elegant i era bonic.

La gespa sempre és més elegant més elegant que les roques i els arbres, els arbres són elegants i també ho són les roques però la gespa ho és més.

I aquí a dalt hi havia gespa i continuava i continuava és molt més difícil pujar amunt i amunt i amunt sobre la gespa que sobre roques i sota arbres.

I transportar una cadira blava cap a dalt contínuament a través de la gespa perquè la gespa és abrupta i més abrupta que les roques, era molt difícil aquell dia i aquesta era la manera que la Rosa seguia el seu camí.

Havia de fer-ho quina altra cosa podia fer ella havia de veure-ho a través de la pujada allí fer tot el camí allí i asseure's a la seva cadira.

I quan vas caminant per la gespa és més difícil de veure on n'hi ha. I en qualsevol cas què deia això. La gespa no ho deia en qualsevol cas, era verda i res que sigui verd no té res a dir.

La Rosa sabia que això és perquè ella sempre preferia el blau.

(Gertrude Stein. El món és rodó. Barcelona: Laia, 1985, p. 61-62. Trad.: Marta Pessarrodona)

Versió original

ONCE UPON A time way back, there were always meadows with grass on them on top of every mountain. A mountain looked as if it had rocks way up there but really way up there there was always grass and the grass always made it look elegant and it was nice.

Grass is always the most elegant more elegant than rocks and trees, trees are elegant and so are rocks but grass is more SO.

And here way up there was grass and it was going on and on and it is so much harder to climb up and up and up on grass than on rocks and under trees.

And to carry a blue chair way up there on and on through the grass because grass is steep steeper than rocks are, it was a very difficult day that day and that was the way Rose went on her way.

She had to what else could she do she had to see it through getting up there to be all the way there and to sit on her chair.

And when you are walking on grass it is harder to see where there is. And anyway what did it say. The grass did not say anyway, it was green and nothing green ever has anything to say.

Rose knew that that is why she always did prefer blue.

(Gertrude Stein. The world is round. Ch. 9. New York: William R. Scott, 1939)

4. QUÈ SÓN LES OBRES MESTRES I PER QUÈ SÓN TAN ESCASSES

Una vegada vaig escriure en l'escrit The Making of Americans que escrivia per a mi i per a desconegeuts però això era un formalisme merament literari perquè si escrivia per a mi i per a estranys si realment ho fes no estaria escrivint perquè aleshores la identitat ja ocuparia el lloc de l'entitat. És terriblement difícil, l'acció és directa i eficaç però després de tot l'acció és necessària i tot el que és necessari té a veure amb la naturalesa humana i no amb la ment humana. Per tant una obra mestra essencialment no ha de ser necessària, ha de ser que ha d'existir però no ha de ser necessària no és en resposta a la necessitat com l'acció és perquè l'instant en què esdevé necessària no té en si mateixa cap possibilitat d'acomplir-se.

Tornant al que té com a subjecte una obra mestra. En escriure sobre pintura vaig dir que un quadre existeix per i en si mateix i que el pintor ha d'utilitzar objectes, paisatges i persones com a mitjà l'únic mitjà amb què pot ser capaç de fer que el quadre existeixi. Aquest és un problema de cadascú i particularment el problema ara mateix quan tothom que escriu o pinta ha arribat a ser excepcionalment conscient de les coses que usa és a dir els esdeveniments les persones els objectes i els paisatges i fonamentalment l'instant en què s'és conscient profundament conscient d'aquestes coses com a tema l'interès per elles no existeix.

Això ens explica molt bé la dificultat d'escriure novel·les o poesia en aquests dies. La tradició sempre ha estat que podem descriure més o menys les coses que passen ens les imaginem és clar però més o menys descrivim les coses que passen però avui dia tothom sap el que està passant al llarg de tot el dia i doncs el que està passant no és realment interessant, ho sabem per les ràdios els cinemes els diaris les biografies les autobiografies fins que el que està passant no emociona realment a ningú, els emociona una mica però realment no els emociona. El pintor ja no pot dir que el que fa és com el món se li presenta perquè ja no pot mirar el món, ha estat massa fotografiat i ha de dir que fa una altra cosa. En altre temps un pintor deia que pintava el que veia és clar que no era així però de tota manera podria dir-ho, ara no ho vol pas dir perquè veure-ho no és interessant. Això té alguna cosa a veure però no tot amb les obres mestres i per què n'hi ha tan poques.

Així que veieu per què parlar no té res a veure amb la creació, parlar realment afecta la naturalesa humana tal com és i la naturalesa humana no té res a veure amb les obres mestres.

(Gertrude Stein. “Què són les obres mestres i per què són tan escasses”. Trad.: JLY, d'AIDA, 2023)

Versió original

I once wrote in writing The Making of Americans I write for myself and strangers but that was merely a literary formalism for if I did write for myself and strangers if I did I would not really be writing because already then identity would take the place of entity. It is awfully difficult, action is direct and effective but after all action is necessary and anything that is necessary has to do with human nature and not with the human mind. Therefore a master-piece has essentially not to be necessary, it has to be that is it has to exist but it does not have to be necessary it is not in response to necessity as action is because the minute it is necessary it has in it no possibility of going on.

To come back to what a master-piece has as its subject. In writing about painting I said that a picture exists for and in itself and the painter has to use objects landscapes and people as a way the only way that he is able to get the picture to exist. That is every one's trouble and particularly the trouble just now when every one who writes or paints has gotten to be abnormally conscious of the things he uses that is the events the people the objects and the landscapes and fundamentally the minute one is conscious deeply conscious of these things as a subject the interest in them does not exist.

You can tell that so well in the difficulty of writing novels or poetry these days. The tradition has always been that you may more or less describe the things that happen you imagine them of course but you more or less describe the things that happen but nowadays everybody all day long knows what is happening and so what is happening is not really interesting, one knows it by radios cinemas newspapers biographies autobiographies until what is happening does not really thrill any one, it excites them a little but it does not really thrill them. The painter can no longer say that what he does is as the world looks to him because he cannot look at the world any more, it has been photographed too much and he has to say that he does something else. In former times a painter said he painted what he saw of course he didn't but anyway he could say it, now he does not want to say it because seeing it is not interesting. This has something to do with master-pieces and why there are so few of them but not everything.

So you see why talking has nothing to do with creation, talking is really human nature as it is and human nature has nothing to do with master-pieces.

(Gertrude Stein. "What are master-pieces and why are there so few of them". Los Angeles, CA: The conference Press, 1940. p. 86-87)

5. PARÍS ERA UNA FESTA (Ernest Hemingway)

Ara bé, quan al Luxemburg em quedava sense llum, travessava els jardins i m'aturava a l'estudi on vivia la Gertrude Stein, al número 27 de la rue de Fleurus. La meva dona i jo havíem anat un dia a veure la senyoreta Stein, i ella i l'amiga amb qui vivia havien sigut molt cordials i amistoses, i a nosaltres ens havia encantat aquell gran estudi ple de quadres. Era com si fos una de les millors sales del museu, amb la diferència que tenia una gran llar de foc, que a dins s'hi estava calent i còmode, i que et donaven bon menjar i te i destil·lats naturals de prunes liles o grogues o de gerds de bosc. Aquests licors olorosos i transparents es conservaven en ampolles de vidre treballat i se servien en gots petits, i tant si era quetsche, com mirabelle o framboise, tots conservaven el gust de la fruita originària, transformat en un foc controlat que t'escalfava i et deixava anar la llengua.

La senyoreta Stein era molt corpulenta sense ser alta i tenia una complexió robusta, com de pagesa. Tenia uns ulls bonics i una cara forta de jueva alemanya que també hauria pogut ser friülesa, i tota ella em recordava les pageses del nord d'Itàlia, amb aquella roba, aquella cara expressiva i els cabells preciosos, gruixuts i vius d'immigrant que duia exactament tal com els devia dur en l'època de la universitat. Xerrava sense parar; al principi, només de persones i de llocs. La seva companya tenia una veu molt agradable, era menuda, molt morena, duia els cabells tallats com Joana d'Arc a les il·lustracions de Boutet de Monvel i tenia un nas de ganxo. Quan la vam conèixer brodava, i alhora que cosia es cuidava del menjar i la beguda i parlava amb la meva dona. Dirigia una conversa i n'escoltava dues, i sovint interrompia aquella en què no participava. Més endavant em va explicar que ella sempre enraonava amb les dones dels visitants. Les dones, segons vam percebre tant la meva dona com jo, només eren tolerades. Però la senyoreta Stein i la seva amiga ens queien bé, tot i que l'amiga feia una mica de por. Els quadres, els pastissos i l'eau-de-vie eren realment esplèndidis. Teníem la sensació que nosaltres també els quèiem bé, i ens tractaven com si fossim criatures molt bones, educades i precoces, i vaig tenir la sensació que ens perdonaven que estiguéssim en- amorats i casats —ja ho arreglaria el temps, això, i el dia que la meva dona les va convidar a prendre el te, van acceptar.

(Ernest Hemingway. París era una festa. Barcelona: Viena, 2018, p. 18-19. Trad.: Ferran Ràfols Gesa)

Versió original

But if the light was gone in the Luxembourg I would walk up through the gardens and stop in at the studio apartment where Gertrude Stein lived at 27 rue de Fleurus.

My wife and I had called on Miss Stein, and she and the friend who lived with her had been very cordial and friendly and we had loved the big studio with the great paintings. It was like one of the best rooms in the finest museum except there was a big fireplace and it was warm and comfortable and they gave you good things to eat and tea and natural distilled liqueurs made from purple plums, yellow plums or wild raspberries. These were fragrant, colorless alcohols served from cut-glass carafes in small glasses and whether they were quetsche, mirabelle or framboise they all tasted like the fruits they came from, converted into a controlled fire on your tongue that warmed you and loosened it.

Miss Stein was very big but not tall and was heavily built like a peasant woman. She had beautiful eyes and a strong German-Jewish face that also could have been Friulano and she reminded me of a northern Italian peasant woman with her clothes, her mobile face and her lovely, thick, alive immigrant hair which she wore put up in the same way she had probably worn it in college. She talked all the time and at first it was about people and places.

Her companion had a very pleasant voice, was small, very dark, with her hair cut like Joan of Arc in the Boutet de Monvel illustrations and had a very hooked nose. She was working on a piece of needlepoint when we first met them and she worked on this and saw to the food and drink and talked to my wife. She made one conversation and listened to two and often interrupted the one she was not making. Afterwards she explained to me that she always talked to the wives. The wives, my wife and I felt, were tolerated. But we liked Miss Stein and her friend, although the friend was frightening. The paintings and the cakes and the eau-de-vie were truly wonderful. They seemed to like us too and treated us as though we were very good, well mannered and promising children and I felt that they forgave us for being in love and being married —time would fix that—and when my wife invited them to tea, they accepted.

(Ernest Hemingway. A moveable feast. New York: Charles Scribner's sons, 1964. p. 13-15)